The Daily Oregonian.

No flag but the Old Flag—the Red, White and Blue,
With the stars of a Union unbroken and true!
Arise and defend it! ye sons of the brave,
Whose blood bought the banner your valor must save.

SATURDAY MORNING, FEB. 20, 1864.

Our Steam Power.

The DAILY and WEEKLY OREGONIAN of this morning are printed by steam, and are the first specimens of that kind of working power, ever presented to the public in this State. The large and constantly increasing circulation of our paper in both departments, has compelled us to employ this time and labor saving, though costly agency,—and we hope by this course, we shall be enabled fully and promptly to supply all the demand which our generous patrons can make. Very shortly, the telegraph will put us in constant communication with the Atlantic Coast, and we shall henceforth be able to keep our forms open for the latest news, until the very hour of publication, so that our readers may always be sure to find in our columns the last intelligence which can be obtained. We have made such arrangements with experienced and competent telegraphic correspondents in California, as will secure to us the most important and reliable items of news, and whatever enterprise, diligence and the best printing facilities in the State can accomplish, shall be done to make the DAILY and WEEKLY OREGONIAN worthy of popular confidence, and full of interesting and patriotic intelligence for the good of the country. With the WEEKLY, we have published for some time past a supplement containing fourteen columns of reading matter, thus giving to our subscribers thirty-six columns exclusive of advertisements,—a much larger amount, considering the type used by us, than is furnished by any newspaper, north of Sacramento. We shall continue to do so, at least for the present; and during the ensuing Presidential campaign, propose to offer such terms to new subscribers, as shall bring the price within the means of all who can afford to take any paper whatever.

We trust that our friends will appreciate our exertions in their behalf, and will be ready and willing to make opportunities for the extension of our circulation, as it is our desire and intention to use all the means which we can honorably obtain to make the OREGONIAN not merely profitable to ourselves, but the leading and most enterprising paper in the State.

The steam engine used by us was made expressly for our purpose, by E. L. Jones & Co., of the Oregon Iron Works, and is the first piece of machinery of the kind ever manufactured north of San Francisco. It is a table or upright engine, of four horse power, occupying upon its base but 38x40½ inches. The stroke is 8 inches, with a 6-inch bore. The packing throughout is metallic, and as a specimen of handicraft this engine has never been surpassed on the Pacific Coast, either in point of finish or efficiency. The boiler is tubular, and presents heating surface adequate to the highest power of the engine. With this appliance, our press readily casts off fifteen hundred impressions per hour, which could be increased should an exigency arise requiring such additional speed. It is due to Mr. Nation, the machinist of the firm, to state, from our own experience, that those desiring any work in his line, will find him capable and at all times willing to guarantee them full satisfaction.

THE OWYHEE MINES.—Letters were received in this city last evening from agents of parties interested in the new mines, which gives a satisfactory and glowing report of recent operations in that vicinity. If we may rely on the representations made to us, (and there is no reason why we should not) the gold and silver which is ready for the miner, is abundant enough to give ample reward to one hundred thousand men during the present season. It cannot be denied that some of the specimens which we saw yesterday are wonderfully rich, and are likely to tempt the best contented farmer away from his homestead. We hope, however, that enough of our good citizens will stay at home to do the agricultural work which is necessary to make a noble harvest, for it will be profitable this year, more than ever before.

HOW THE SOUTH KEEPS ARMIES TOGETHER.—The Rebel Congress has found a short and effective way to re-enlist all the rebel soldiers in the field. It has passed an act declaring that they are all to be "retained in service for and during the existence of the war with the United States." If any claim a discharge because the term of service has expired, they are to be shot as deserters. What a lovely republic! Yet some of their Northern allies say that there is more freedom at the South, than in the loyal States. If so, we wish they would go, find and enjoy it; nobody wants them to stay here and suffer the burdens of liberty, when traitors can be so much more indulgent and favorable.

LIEUT. R. H. LAMSON, U. S. A.—This distinguished young officer, of whom our State may justly be proud, formerly in command of the Nansemond, has been ordered to the command of the Margaret and Jessie, now called the Gettysburg, which vessel he captured while endeavoring to run the blockade off Wilmington. The Gettysburg is one of the fastest of the fleet of English blockade-runners. Lieut. Lamson is in New York superintending the fitting out of his new command.

NORTH AND SOUTH—THE DIFFERENCE.—The Richmond correspondent of the London Times in his last letter uses this significant language:

"No one who has been conversant with the Northern States during the last two and a half years can have failed to notice with astonishment the faith, stronger than death, which the Northerners have exhibited in their 'star,' their 'manifest destiny,' their religion, their Alpha and Omega, their dream of dominion from sea to sea, and (to quote Mr. Everett's words) 'from the icy Pole to flaming belt of the Equator.' No parallel faith has ever been exhibited by the Confederate States in their future. Six great Southern victories in the field and three drawn battle, exhausting the nine principal collisions of the war, the entire absence of any such panic route as Bull Run or Chickamauga, the tried inefficiency of the Federal blockade, the unmolested, predatory flight of Alabamas and Floridas at sea, have altogether failed to inspire the masses of the South with a tithe of that confidence in themselves which neither defeat nor disaster, nor hope deferred, nor illusions dispelled, have ever shaken out of the Northerners. Deny it who may, there is something sublime in this shadowy earnestness and misty magnificence of Northern faith and self-reliance. Would that I could see promise of future and final Southern triumph in any corresponding quality of the Southern mind."

A SPEECH BY SECRETARY STANTON.—On last Christmas Day, Stanton visited the soldiers in Stanton Hospital, Washington, and made them a brief speech. He said:

Soldiers: I hope that when the next anniversary of the day you are now celebrating, occurs, that this war will be ended, and you will have returned to your homes and your firesides. When you shall have so returned, you will be considered as honored guests of the nation. You have perilled your lives upon the battle-field, or you have suffered in camps from the ravages of disease incidental to great armies. But whether you have been wounded, or been attacked by sickness, you are equally entitled to consideration at the hands of your country. If you have been wounded in battle, or suffer from sickness contracted in the service of your country, I will see that you have a proper reward given you. Soldiers: If we can end this rebellion with the extinction of slavery, will it not be a great triumph? You will, at the end of this great rebellion, when making a review of it, have the satisfaction of knowing that you had aided the Government of the United States in discharging the duties incumbent on that Government, when it was in peril. And, furthermore, you will experience the feeling that you have materially aided to make the country free. (Applause.)

MILITARY SENTENCE.—At a General Court Martial, held at Fort Walla Walla, (W. T.,) Nov. 24, 1863, private Francis Ely, Company A, First Cavalry, Oregon Volunteers, was arraigned and tried for desertion, deserting post, and stealing. He was found guilty on the several charges and sentenced to be shot to death with musketry at such time and place as the General commanding should direct. General Wright has issued the following order:

The proceedings, findings and sentence of the General Court Martial in the foregoing case of private Francis Ely, of Company A, First Cavalry, Oregon Volunteers, are hereby approved and confirmed. The sentence of the Court will be executed under the direction of the commanding officer of the post where the said Francis Ely may be on receipt of this order, on the second Friday thereafter, between the hours of ten, A. M., and two, P. M.

VERMONT AND THE DRAFT.—The rocky and plucky State of Vermont has enlisted her entire quota under the new call, exclusive of the re-enlistments of her soldiers in the field. The new levies are reported to be of the best quality, coming mainly from the laboring class, the bone and sinew of her population. The Green Mountain State takes the lead of her Eastern sisters. Take heed of this, ye Green Mountaineers now resident upon Pacific shores, and throw up your hats with nine cheers for "the Old Star that never sets."

CORRECTION.—In the letter of Gen. Alvord to Gov. Gibbs, which appears on our first page, the word "not" was omitted by typographical error in the following instance:—"Col. Maury was ordered to remain out until the end of October. He did NOT come in prematurely only to hear of a massacre of emigrants in his rear." The omission made the sentence read so utterly repugnant to the whole drift and tenor of the letter, that the misprint was quite obvious. But as an act of justice to the gallant officer, the correction is made.

ANOTHER NEW STEAMER.—We learn that arrangements were yesterday entered into for the construction of another small stern-wheel steamer, of 14 feet beam and 63 feet length, intended for general work anywhere between Astoria and the head of navigation. She is to be built somewhere in the vicinity of Lewis river, by Captain G. W. Harris, and Samuel Lawrence.

SOLEMN JOKES BY HIGH OFFICERS.—During the dark days of the siege, when food and forage were scarce, and the ghastly corpses and bleached skeletons of starved mules lined the thoroughfares hereabouts, General Grant and Quartermaster General Meigs arrived in Chattanooga. Taking an airing on horseback one afternoon, they passed the carcass of a large mule lying by the roadside, whose "ill-savor went up" before and around them. The Hero of Vicksburg removed his briar root from his lips, and remarked sorrowfully, "Ah, General, there lies a dead soldier of the Quartermaster's Department." "Yes, General," replied the Quartermaster-General, in subdued tones, "in him you see the ruling passion strong in death exemplified, for the old veteran has already assumed the offensive."

California News.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 8th.—As the ship Imperial, Captain Hutchings, from Hongkong was entering the port of Singapore, in November, the rebel pirate Alabama, was discovered about 30 miles off, for the same port. The excitement was very great, as it was only a few days before that she had captured and destroyed the Contest, with a cargo of rags on board. Capt. Hutchings immediately dropped the anchor and took passage in a steam tug for Hongkong, and there sold his ship to a British house for the sum of $10,000 less than he was offered for her a few days previous to his sailing from Hongkong. This he was obliged to do, as it was the only alternative left to save his vessel from total destruction.

Seth Weatherbee sues J. J. Ayres & Co., of the Call, for $50,000 damages for libel. The Call charges that Weatherbee collected coin for immigrant taxes and paid the State in legal tender notes.

It is rumored that Reverdy Johnson and Daniel S. Dickinson are expected on the next steamer, to conduct the Gouche Mining Company's case.

FOR OAK POINT.—The bark Samuel Merritt was yesterday morning taken in tow by the steamer John H. Couch, destined for Oak Point to load lumber for San Francisco.

EASTERN NEWS.

FORTRESS MONROE, Feb. 5.—The steamer Washington brings the following in regard to the attack on Newbern, (N. C.): On the morning of February 1st, before the break of day, the rebels, consisting of Pickett's division from Kinston, and Hope's brigade from Lee's army, made an assault on our outposts at Batchelder's, eight miles from Newbern, which they carried after a desperate struggle, capturing 70 men. Detachments from different companies are reported to be in possession of a block-house nine miles from Newbern, surrounded by rebels, and holding their ground against vastly superior numbers. A force of cavalry has been sent to their relief. The rebels are in sight of the city, and can be seen from Fort Stanton maneuvering their troops. Our forces are resting on their arms by night awaiting an attack. Fort Jackson, on the south side of the river Trent, still holds out. This (Tuesday) morning at 3 o'clock, the enemy, in barges, boarded the gunboat Underwriter, which covered a portion of our artillery near Fort Anderson. After a terrible struggle she was captured with officers and a number of the crew. Fortunately, the Underwriter's slow headway against the current saved her from being carried off by the rebels. It is reported that the rebels are moving on Washington and Plymouth, and that they are receiving reinforcements.

A Newbern dispatch dated Tuesday evening, Feb. 2d, says: Newport is in possession of the rebels, which cuts off communication with Beaufort. This also gives the rebels command of the approaches to Newbern by the Neuse river, should they choose to fortify its banks.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The Naval Committee of the House has gone to Chester, (Pa.) to investigate the charges of fraud in connection with naval contracts there.

The bands of guerillas seem to have vacated Fairfax county, Virginia. A cavalry expedition made a long scout toward Blue Ridge, without finding any rebels except a few stragglers from Mosby's band.

Gen. Kelly telegraphs that the rebels have retreated into Central Virginia.

The particulars of the capture of General E. P. Scammon and staff and the burning of the steamer Levi, have been received. The steamer was lying at Winfield, on the Kanawha, (Va.) On Wednesday night, February 3d, thirty-five guerillas appeared on the opposite side, thirteen of whom crossed in a skiff, took possession of the boat, capturing Gen. Scammon and three other officers. These were mounted and started for the interior. A force has been started in pursuit.

The gunboat Flambeau, from off Charleston February 1st, has arrived. Gilmore keeps up a regular fire on the city, averaging three shells every five minutes. The rebels have mounted five guns on Sumter. Gilmore keeps good watch over it, and the garrison is enabled to do but little harm. The navy was still picketing the harbor. The attempt to raise the Weehawken, will probably prove a failure. Charleston does not yet show many marks of our fire.

HALIFAX, Feb. 6.—In the case of the Chesapeake, the Admiralty Court decided to restore the vessel and cargo to the owners, subject to conditions regarding the payment of expenses of the Court.

Marshal Kane and a number of rebel officers left on the steamer Alpha for Dixie to-day.

LEAVENWORTH, Feb. 6.—Major McKinney, of General Curtis' staff, reports a skirmish between Capt. Coleman's command and about one hundred guerillas, supposed to be a part of Quantrell's old band, in Jackson county, Missouri. He also says there are evidences that guerillas are collecting in that county for plundering operations. Arrangements are being made to break up this organization.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Dispatches have been received at the Navy Department announcing that the Sassacus and Florida destroyed the new fast blockade runner Wild Darrell, near New Topsail inlet, where she got ashore and destroyed most of the cargo.

Private information to-day states that the Kansas Legislature has agreed to go into the election of United States Senator on Tuesday, the 9th, to fill the place of General Lane, notwithstanding the majority of the present Legislature were elected with the understanding that no election should take place during the present term.

Major General Blunt leaves for General Curtis' department to-morrow. He is to have command of the district of Indian Territory, headquarters at Fort Smith, and will be supplied with an army for offensive operations.

A refugee from Mobile, January 20th, represents the rebel army in and around the city at about five thousand men, under Gen. Maury. All the other troops had been sent to Atlanta. While en route for the Federal lines he learned that the rebel army in the vicinity of Meridan was fifteen to twenty thousand strong.

General Schofield assumed command of the Department of the Ohio yesterday.

A dispatch from Powell river bridge, five miles east of Cumberland Gap, says: Citizens report that the rebels are concentrated at Newmarket and Dandridge.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—A special dispatch to the Post says: It is the intention of the Military Committee of the House to press the Conscription bill to a vote as soon as possible.

A private letter, dated Charlotte Harbor, (Fla.), Jan. 20th, says a number of troops under General Woodbury had arrived at Punta Gorda, their object being to cut off a large supply of beeves which the rebels were taking from that point, at the rate of fifteen hundred per week. The expedition was guided by Lieut. Crane, who was Commissary during the Florida war, and resided in the State until the rebellion broke out, when he was compelled to leave on account of his Union sentiments. Lieut. Crane says he intends to take possession of Fort Meyers, on the Caloosahatchee river, and make it a rallying place for Union men, as well as a base of supplies.

A Chattanooga dispatch, dated Feb. 7th, says:—The railroad is open to Cleveland, Tenn., and will be open to Knoxville within five days. Reports of a wide-spread mutiny in the rebel army are afloat. Deserters are still coming in.

The railroad depot at Chattanooga, containing Quartermaster's stores, was burned on Saturday night, Feb. 6th. The Government loss is $100,000. The rebel army is around Tunnel Hill, Rome and Dalton.

In the month of January 1048 deserters were registered at the Provost Marshal's office. One hundred and ten came in on the 2d of February.

Special dispatches say the Secretary of War will this week issue an order to raise the cavalry and infantry regiments to 2,400 men each, by consolidation. The raising of further regiments of cavalry will also be stopped.

The proof against Surgeon General Hammond, now on trial, will be very strong.

The War Department has issued an order that all enlisted men in the regular army, whose terms of service expires the present year, will be permitted to enlist any time before March 1st, and on re-enlisting will receive $300 bounty.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The Richmond Examiner says: Several thousand Yankee prisoners are about to be sent to Georgia. 900 of the 6,000 or 7,000 now in Richmond were in the hospital on Jan. 20th.

A gentleman from Wilmington, N. C., informs the Petersburg, Va., Express that it will soon be impossible for vessels to get into that port without loss, or incurring hazards almost equivalent to positive loss.

The steamer Austin, from Havana, arrived at Mobile January 9th, with a cargo of pork, gunpowder, etc., for the rebel Government.

NEW YORK, February 7.—The Columbia, from New Orleans, Jan. 30th, has arrived. Political matters were at fever heat. It was thought Michael Hahn had the inside track for the Governorship. District Attorney Waples was also a prominent candidate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—In the Senate, Sumner, of Massachusetts, presented a memorial from the colored men of Philadelphia, asking the privilege of the elective franchise. Referred to the Committee of Freedom and Slavery.

Sumner introduced a joint resolution to amend the Constitution of the United States, so that all persons shall be equal under the law, whether white or colored, and that no person hereafter shall be held in bondage. Referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Anthony, of Rhode Island, moved to repeal the joint resolution to amend the Constitution of the United States, approved March 2, 1861. Referred to the Judiciary Committee. This amendment would give Congress the power to abolish slavery throughout the country.

The House debated the Enrollment Bill until adjournment. An amendment was adopted making all able-bodied negroes between 18 and 45 liable to the draft. This was subsequently stricken out.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—A Memphis letter, dated February 4th says: Information from Vicksburg is to the effect that the Sixteenth and Tenth Army Corps moved forward last week. The Seventeenth Corps, under McPherson, has advanced before this time. They have reached Jackson and probably attacked Polk's forces at Meridian.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—A Washington special dispatch says: At eight o'clock on Saturday morning, (6th) the Third Army Corps marched to the Rapidan and laid their pontoons in the face of the enemy, and despite resistance, crossed, taking many prisoners. At four o'clock, P. M., the Second Corps crossed. The advance was highly satisfactory. Important movements may be looked for.

An officer who had left Mitchell's Station this morning says that about dusk last night the rebels threw a large force of infantry and artillery down to Raccoon Ford, opening a fire with artillery upon our troops stationed there. The cannonading was kept up until late in the evening, without loss on our side. During the night we moved reinforcements to the front.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The Evening Star has the following: Parties from the front represent that we experienced considerable loss on the return of our troops from the late demonstration. It is stated that some of our pontoons were lost at the Rapidan whereby the enemy were enabled to pick up some of our men who had not recrossed. It was also stated that the rebel cavalry force, crossing above Morton's Ford, interrupted a couple of our regiments, who were forced to cut their way through, with some loss. These reports, it should be added, are not at all definite, and have not up to noon to-day, been confirmed by anything received at the War Department.

Parties arriving from the front this morning state that when our troops pushed across at Germanna Ford they found the rebel rifle pits in that immediate vicinity occupied by about twenty-five pickets, who threw down their arms and surrendered. Our forces pushed ahead in the direction of Orange Court House, but had hardly progressed two miles when they were opened on from twelve guns. We drove them from their position with considerable loss. Our loss in the affair was thirty-five. The mass of our infantry then recrossed the Rapidan, leaving a force to hold the rifle pits first taken, until the operation of our cavalry, that had moved by a different route, had terminated. Heavy firing is said to have been heard yesterday. It was believed about Culpepper that our cavalry were then engaged with the enemy they had been seeking.

The New Iron War Steamer "Dictator."

This splendid specimen of naval architecture was launched from the yard of Mr. C. H. De Lamater, foot of Thirteenth street, North river, New York, December 26th.

It will be remembered that two unsuccessful attempts were made on the 28th and 29th of Nov., to place the vessel upon the water. At nine o'clock in the morning preparations for the launch were concluded. Captain Ericsson, with two of his aids, Miss De Lamater, Mr. C. H. De Lamater, Chief Engineer Rollie, and several others were on board at the time. The Dictator was ready to launch one week before, but it was deemed prudent to wait for high tide. There being but little publicity given to the matter, there were but few persons present at the time; but shortly after the vessel was fairly in the water some two or three thousand persons assembled on the adjacent piers and shipping. The fault which prevented the successful launching of the Dictator at first, was the fact that a sufficient inclination was not given to the ways under the vessel, and this being remedied hence the easy and rapid manner by which everything was accomplished yesterday morning. The vessel was gaily decorated with colors—the national flag floating from the stem and the Union Jack in front. As soon as everything was in readiness the blocks were struck from under by the workmen, and amid the cheers of those assembled the Dictator glided into the water with the greatest ease and gracefulness. She was christened by Miss De Lamater. From the impetus given in launching the vessel went nearly across to the other side of the river, when she was brought back to her dock by two steamtugs. It having been frequently stated that the Dictator is an ocean ironclad, the impression prevails that she resembles the New Ironsides and other vessels built for the purpose of going to sea. This is not so. The Dictator has none of the paraphernalia of such ocean vessels as we are in the habit of looking at in our harbors. She has none of the tall bulwarks, no masts, no rigging, no capstan on deck—nothing, in fact, that looks like an ordinary ship. A long-armed man could almost dip his hands into the water from her deck. The keel of the Dictator was laid one year ago last September. The dimensions of the hull of the vessel are as follows: extreme length over all 314 feet; the aft overhang being 31 feet, and forward overhang 13; it leaves 200 feet between perpendiculars; extreme breadth 50, and depth 22½ feet. Unlike the original Monitor, and the Monitors that are now in course of construction, the Dictator is almost exclusively iron—her frames, beams, &c., being of that metal. A person looking at her in the river can form no idea of her appearance when she is completely out of water. If an ordinary ship were lifted up, and an immense shelf of 11 feet of iron placed on the top of her deck, overhanging for a space of some four feet on each side, she would resemble the Dictator. Every frame and beam is fastened in the most secure manner, and we believe the bolts were all put in red hot to render them sufficiently tight. The frames are put together in the same manner as those of the Montauk and Passaic, but they are much more formidable, some of them being double. The skin of the ship, or the covering of the frames—is of wood, put on the slabs lengthwise, each being about 14 inches square. These wooden slabs are fastened to the iron frames with screw bolts, which have no nuts, thus rendering it impossible for any such occurrence to take place as that by which the lamented Capt. [illegible] lost his life. This wooden skin is no less than five 8 inches in thickness. The magnitude of this face can only be understood when we state that the hull of an ordinary European steamer does not measure more than 16 to 20 inches in thickness, that, without the outside armor at all, the hull of the Dictator is nearly twice as thick as that of the Persia. Both forward and aft there are inserted in these wooden slabs immense blocks of iron, to make them still more formidable and powerful, which length of the hull, in the case of this vessel, is the entire length of the ship, as a man can stand on the extreme end of the bow and stern. Taking into account the usual slope of the sea, the Dictator could not be seen four miles off. The armor of the original Monitor consisted of 4½ inches of iron, laid on in single plates, each one inch thick. That of the Warrior consisted of 4½ inches of iron laid on in a solid slab like our own iron-clad frigate Roanoke. The French frigate La Gloire, had also 4½ inches of iron laid on in a solid slab. Now, the Dictator has on her sides above 11 inches of iron, and five inches of this is in one solid beam, somewhat like the Warrior, the La Gloire and the Roanoke, except that the plates of the latter were in very large slabs, while those of the Dictator are in beams five by three inches. Over these five inch blocks of iron are six one-inch plates of iron; making altogether an armor of 11 inches of iron; the same dimensions as the armor of a turret of the original Monitor, the Passaic, Montauk, &c. The armor begins at the deck and goes down only six feet, which takes it about four feet below water; so that the deck of the ocean iron-clad Dictator will only be about two feet over water. Below this armor there is 22 feet of the ship, only two feet of which is covered by the 11 inches of iron mail. There are, therefore, 14½ feet of the hull which has only a skin of one inch iron plate. The weight of the armor is about 525 tons—the burden of a pretty large sized steamer. At six cents a pound the armor would cost about $63,000, without workmanship. There will be but one turret, of a very improved pattern. It was originally intended to cover it with 24 inches of iron, but the perfection to which its construction has now been brought will render 15 inches sufficient. This is four inches more than the armor of the original Monitor and the Passaic, and ten inches more than the armored sides of the vessels. The magnitude of the different beams and machinery of the turret is immense, and it is in this magnitude and in its improved pattern that it chiefly differs from the old turrets. The apparatus for working the guns will be of a still newer principle than any yet carried out. The revolution in naval artillery, caused by the facility with which four or five men can work the old 15-inch gun, will no doubt still more startling when one or two men can easily handle the immense pieces of ordnance to be placed in the Dictator. The turret will be covered in action when necessary. The new bar which was recently added to the turrets of the last batch of Iron-clads since the disabling of the Passaic, will be adopted in the new turret on a much more improved principle. The bar is 10 inches thick and fastened on with bolts. The gear of the turret is different from that of the other vessels, and is much better. The turret complete will weigh almost 500 tons, or thereabout, being as heavy almost, as the entire armor of the vessel. It is not on board at present, but will be put in its place immediately, as it is completed. The ram is the finest piece of mechanism connected with the ship. The ram proper is 22 feet of solid oak and iron; unlike the Keokuk, which protruded from the bottom of the hull, near the keel. This extends from the top of the deck, being as it were, an extension of the entire armor of the ship. Another advantage in this ram is that it could be carried away without any material damage or injury to the vessel, and without her making water. The decks are perfectly clear of all incumbrances except the turret. The same objection made to the other monitors, relative to their liability to be injured by plunging shot, is valid in the Dictator's case, but it is only just to say, that, of the iron-clad vessels engaged in the attack on Charleston, none has suffered any serious inconvenience from injuries done to the deck. It seems almost impossible, and has proved so, that a projectile fired from an ordinary boat could enter the deck. The armor of the deck consist of 1½ inches of iron, laid on in two plates in the same manner as in the other vessels. The main deck—that on which the crew and officers are to live—is a very commodious one, being as high as that of any first-class sailing frigate in the Navy. A man six feet high, with his hat on, can walk without stooping from end to end of it. Of course the different apartments have not been as yet arranged, all that sort of work being left to the last. The ship is ventilated by three immense blowers, two for the use of the vessel generally, and one for the express purpose of ventilating the engine-room. These blowers are of immense size, about 72 inches by 48 inches. An air trunk, supplying a blower eight feet in diameter, is within about 15 feet of the stern. The air to supply the other blowers is drawn from the top of the turret and distributed through the ship. The most untravelled individual knows how vessels are steered. "The man at the wheel" has before him a compass, the hands of which point to the different parts of the globe. In the iron-clads this arrangement is impracticable. The needle refuses to do its accustomed business, surrounded by such masses of iron as are in each turret; acts sluggishly, and is in fact perfectly useless. Several means have been adopted to remedy this inconvenience, the most successful of them being that now in use. It is no other than by the help of a looking-glass. The helmsman stands with the wheel in his hands, and before him is a mirror. Seven feet above his head, situated in a copper pipe lifted above the pilot-house, is the compass which directs the course of the vessel. The cordage is so arranged that the movement of its hands is reflected in the mirror, and thus will the Dictator be be steered. The machinery of the Dictator is of a more extensive character than that of any man-of-war built in this country or in Europe. The cylinders will not be less than a hundred inches in diameter. Cylinders of these dimensions have never, we believe, been built in this city, except once for a sidewheel steamboat called the Metropolis. The cylinders are bolted into two massive wrought-iron kelsons, 10 feet deep and some 24 inches or more in width. They are both in line, athwart ships, and have large slide and expansive valves, [illegible] after working over the former. A peculiar feature of the machinery is the absence of guides, cross heads and other cumbrous parts. The piston 4-feet stroke, has a trunk attached to it. The boilers are immense, six in number, and have 56 furnaces and an aggregate grate surface of 1100 feet; allowing 12 pounds of coal per square foot of grate surface the vessel will require at the least 175 tons of coal per day of 24 hours steaming at full speed. The weight of these boilers will be 70 tons each, that is 420 tons altogether, without water; so that when they are completed they will weigh over 700 tons. The cast iron in the boilers alone, at six cents per pound, will amount to $14,000. The shaft is also a gigantic piece of mechanical work: it weighs something like 36 tons—the burden of an average sloop. The propeller is a right-handed true screw, 21½ feet in diameter; has 34 feet pitch, and weighs 39,000 pounds. There is no out-board bearing for the shaft. What piston speed will be obtained from the engines remains to be seen. The propeller is in a well, and cannot be struck by any projectile, as a shot would have to pass through 26 feet of water to strike it. The engines are calculated to be something in the neighborhood of 5000-horse power. One of the greatest difficulties in the way of making the iron-clads permanently useful, was that of protecting the bottoms from the filth which concentrated there and prevented them from moving. The original Monitor had to be towed from Fortress Monroe to Washington on account of her bottom being so foul. The English frigate Warrior also experienced a similar inconvenience, and we learn that some Monitors at present off Charleston are very foul. All sorts of paints have been tried and all with want of success. The most popular was a sort of English "peacock" paint, which was used in some of the small steamers; but it did very little good. On the bottom of the Dictator, however, and on all of our iron-clads to be built henceforward, and most of the naval-built vessels, a successful remedy has been devised, which will keep the bottoms perfectly clear of all filth. It is called "ship zinc" paint, and is perfectly white in color. Some thirty years since a vessel was coated with it in England; she arrived here a few weeks ago, and her bottom was found in perfect order. The Government has responsible parties furnishing the paint and its purity can be relied on. Commodore John Rodgers will command the Dictator. SNAKE RIVER PORTAGE COMPANY.—Articles of Incorporation of the above Company, to exist without limit of duration, were filed on the 18th inst., by Joseph Knott, T. J. Carter, R. J. Ladd, L. F. Grover and Thomas Stephens. The objects of the Company are: The construction of a macadamized plank or clay road, a pack trail and a Railroad through the big canyon on Snake river, occupying both banks of said river with the improvements of said Company, the left bank thereof being in Baker County, in the State of Oregon, for the purpose of transporting all kinds of property, goods, wares, and merchandise, and passengers for freight and hire, and for the passage of teams, animals and passengers for toll, and for the purpose of owning and holding property, and doing all other acts and things properly connected with said enterprise. The termini of said roads and trail shall be the head of navigable waters on Snake river, below the rapids in said big canyon, and the beginning of navigation on said Snake river above the rapids, in said big canyon. Principal office in Portland—capital stock $200,000. Shares $500 each.

MONDAY'S CELEBRATION.—From present weather indications, the celebration of the 22d will not be as pleasant as could be desired. We learn that we were wrongly informed concerning the turnout of the Fire Department—they will content themselves with witnessing the military display in the day time, and in the evening attend the third annual ball of Multnomah Co. No. 2, for which great preparation is making, and which promises to be a recherche affair. The troops will be reviewed by Governor Gibbs, forming in the morning, under Col. John McCraken, on Washington street, the right toward Front. Gen. Alvord and staff, and a Company of Regulars from Fort Vancouver have been invited, and will ... participate. Captain May's Company of Salem, was invited, but we learn ... letter was last evening received announcing their inability to be present. A ... time generally is anticipated. The following order was issued yesterday:

HEADQUARTERS 1ST REGT., 2D BRIG. O. S. M.,
PORTLAND, OREGON, 19th Feb., 1864.
... form for dress parade at 11½ A. M. on ... the centre of the line resting on ... at the intersection of First ... be reviewed by His Excellency Gov. ... on the grounds north of the city ... order of Col. John McCraken.
T. B. TREVETT, Adjt.

... HIMSELF AGAIN.—The un... spell of dry, delightful weather of ... preceeding yesterday gave rise ... remarks at the expense of Oregon ... the other day a gentleman hailed ... that young web-foot; this ... cracked his webs, and makes ... true enough, the boy did limp, ... friend assigned the true cause ... purpose or province to decide. Yes ... return of genuine Oregon mist, in ... able quantities, will either stop the ... or demonstrate the incorrectness of the ... conclusions.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.—Between the hours ... and four o'clock this afternoon, at the ... States District Court Room, an election ... Directors of the Portland Library Association will be held. It is hoped that all ... have the welfare of this embryo association at heart, will be there promptly, and ... their votes for the best men without regard to any consideration other than fitness. ... committee appointed for that purpose, ... commend the following gentlemen: W. S. ..., J. P. Deady, H. W. Corbett, E. D. ..., P. C. Schuyler, Jr., B. Goldsmith, ... Caldwell, L. H. Wakefield, A. P. ..., C. H. Lewis.

... WORK FOR THE COMMISSARY.—The ... steamer yesterday carried away ... five boxes of castings for the repair of ... at Fort Vancouver. These completed ... order of some 16 cwt., filled from the Oregon Iron Works, and indicate a disposition on ... part of the Government to have everything ... readiness, so that in an emergency we ... have to "wait for the wagon."

ATTRACTIVE AUCTION SALE.—A really splendid lot of furniture will be offered at 10 o'clock ... morning, to which we would call attention, ... would like to describe some of the articles ... dwell upon their merits and value, but ... eloquent friend Richardson can beat ... at lies of business, we advise all who ... appreciate true merit, to be on hand punctually at the corner of Oak and Front streets.

... steamer Panama, which left San Francisco on the 17th, taking the place of the ... Oregon, may be looked for by Tuesday evening. She comes by way of Victoria, and hence ... our present telegraphic facilities, can ... bring only the details of news, a summary of ... which will already be in possession of our ... readers.

WILLAMETTE THEATRE.—This is the last ... night but two of the dramatic engagement of Mrs. Julia Dean Hayne. On this occasion ... a very fair bill has been offered, and it being Saturday evening, no doubt a full house will ... be in attendance.

OR COURSE NOT.—The Hunt did not bring ... down many passengers from the upper Columbia last evening; it was not to be expected, ... her bows were pointed the wrong way to suit ... popular travel now-a-days. A good many ... will leave on her this morning.

THE LITERARY SOCIETIES of the Portland Academy are to give an exhibition on the ... evening of the 22d, at the Methodist Church, ... consisting of orations, essays, etc.

THE appointment for speaking at Albany, ... by Rev. T. H. Pearne, is incorrectly published ... "on the 23d inst." It should be the 24th.

THE steamer Senator yesterday brought ... down 47 tons of freight, and but 7 passengers ... owing to non-connection with the boats above.

"I Owe no Man a Dollar."

I do not envy, my own dear wife,
The wealth of our next door neighbor,
But bid me still to be of stout heart,
And cheerfully follow my labor;
You must know the last of those little debts
That have been our lingering sorrow,
Is paid this night! So we'll both go forth,
With happier hearts to-morrow.
O the debtor is but a shame-faced dog,
With the creditor's name on his collar;
While I am king and you are queen,
For we owe no man a dollar!

Our neighbor you saw in his coach to-day,
With his wife and his flaunting daughter,
While we sat down at our careless board,
To a crust and a cup of water,
I saw that the tear-drop stood in your eye,
Though you tried your best to conceal it—
I know that the contrast reached your heart,
And you could not help but feel it;
But knowing now that our scanty fare
Has freed my neck from the collar,
You'll join my laugh, and help me shout—
That we owe no man a dollar!

This neighbor, whose show has dazzled your eyes,
In fact is a wretched debtor;
I pity him oft from my very heart,
And I wish that his lot were better;
Why, the man is the veriest slave, alive,
For his dashing wife and daughter
Will live in style, though ruin should come—
So he goes like a lamb to the slaughter;
But he feels it the tighter every day,
That terrible debtor's collar!
Oh, what would he give, could he say with us:
That he owed no man a dollar!

You seem amazed, but I'll tell you more;
Within two hours I met him,
Sneaking away with a frightened air,
As if a fiend had beset him;
Yet he fled from a very worthy man,
Whom I had met with the greatest pleasure—
Whom I called by name and forced to stop,
Though he said he was not at leisure.
He held my last note! So I held him fast,
Till he freed my neck from the collar;
Then I shook his hand as I proudly said,
"Now, I owe no man a dollar!"

Ah, now you smile, for you feel the force
Of the truths I have been repeating;
I know that a downright honest heart,
In that gentle breast was beating!
To-morrow I'll rise, with a giant's strength,
To follow my daily labor;
But, ere we sleep, let us humbly pray
For our wretched next door neighbor;
And we'll pray for the time when all shall be free
From the weight of the debtor's collar—
When the poorest will lift up his voice and cry,
"Now, I owe no man a dollar!"

THE GRANDMOTHER.—Grandmother is very old, has many wrinkles, and perfectly white hair; but her eyes gleam like two stars, yes, much more beautiful; they are so mild, it does one good to look at them! And then she knows how to relate the most beautiful stories. And she has a dress embroidered with great, great flowers; it is such a heavy silk stuff that it rattles. Grandmother knows a great deal, because she has lived much longer than father and mother; that is certain! Grandmother has a hymn book with strong silver clasps, and she reads very often in the book. In the midst of it lies a rose, pressed and dry; it is not so beautiful as the rose which stands in the glass, but yet she smiles upon it in the most friendly way; indeed, it brings the tears to her eyes! Why does grandmother look so at the faded flower in the old book? Do you know? Every time that grandmother's tears fall upon the flower the colors become fresh again, the rose swells up and fills the whole room with its fragrance, the walls disappear, as if they were only mist, and round about her is the green, glorious wood, where the sun beams through the leaves of the trees; and grandmother is young again; a charming maiden, with full red cheeks, beautiful and innocent—no rose is fresher; but the eyes, the mild, blessing eyes, still belong to grandmother. At her side sits a young man, large and powerful; he reaches her the rose, and she smiles—grandmother does not smile so now! oh yes, look now!—but he has vanished—many thoughts, many forms sweep past—the beautiful young man is gone, the rose lies in the hymn book, and grandmother sits there again as an old woman, and looks upon the faded rose which lies in the book.

Now grandmother is dead. She sat in the armchair and related a long, beautiful story; she said, "Now the story is finished, and I am tired;" and she leaned her head back in order to sleep a little. We could hear her breathing, she slept; but it became stiller and stiller, and stiller, her face was full of happiness and peace, it was as if a sunbeam illumined her features; she smiled again, and then the people said, "She is dead." She then was placed in a black box; there she lay covered with linen; she was very beautiful, and yet her eyes were closed, but every wrinkle had vanished; she lay there with a smile about her mouth; her hair was silver white, venerable, but it did not frighten one to look upon the corpse, for it was indeed the dear, kind-hearted grandmother. The hymn book was placed under her head—this she had herself desired; the rose lay in the old book; and then they buried grandmother.

Upon the grave, close by the church wall, a rose tree was planted! It was full of roses, and the nightingale flew singing over the flowers and the grave. Within the church, there resounded from the organ the most beautiful hymns, which were in the old book under the head of the dead one. The moon shone down upon the grave, but the dead was not there; each child could go there quietly by night and pluck a rose from the peaceful church yard wall. The dead know more than all of us living ones; they are better than we. The earth is heaped up over the coffin, even within the coffin there is earth; the leaves of the hymn book are dust, and the rose, with all its memories. But above bloom fresh roses; above, the nightingale sings, and the organ tones forth; above, the memory of the old grandmother lives, with her mild ever young eyes! Eyes can never die. Ours will one day see the grandmother again, young and blooming as when she for the first time kissed the fresh red rose, which is now dust in the grave.

FEMALE CONVICTS.—A correspondent of the Portland (Me.) Courier, who lately visited the Maine State Prison, writes:

* * * In the same corridor were the female State prisoners. There were three of them. Fallen humanity looks deplorable indeed, when it comes before you thus. Let punishment "take any other shape but that." Woman in a State Prison with murderers and desperate men! And yet to such a strait can they fall!

One of these is a woman past the middle age. She is an incendiary, and she tarries within the grated cell for four years. The others are much younger women. One has five years and the other six, for stealing. They were eloquent with the pathos of the Irish vivacity in pleading for mercy. One of them has left four children behind, and the others two. The passionate agony for their children spoke out in every motion. In the love of a mother for her children, aristocracy, or wealth, or refinement has no pre-eminence. There is a chord in every woman's heart that responds to that passion. Deeper than the love of life is the love of a mother for her child. And so with these sinning, fallen women:

"Give me but my children, and I will be your contented prisoner for life!"

The wail of the little ones seemed to come to them upon the buoyant air, over many miles, bringing a tale of sickness and neglect.

"My children! and my oldest! my Georgie! who is to see to her as she grows up?"

"Do you think, sir," said one of them, "that they will give my oldest away?"

"Very likely," said I, "it will be good for her to be well brought up. How old is she?"

"Eleven; can I have her back when I get out?"

"Perhaps so."

"I will have her back," said the frantic mother, "if I have to tear her away by main strength!"

And so they chafed about the narrow cells as would a lioness bereft of her whelps.

"Tell me, sir, how long you think I must stay here?"

"About five years and a half, I suppose."

"Oh, don't you say so; don't you say so—I shall be a gray haired woman then; my hair is turning gray now, with my trouble."

Nothing was asked for; no complaint; no privilege desired; all was absorbed in the one overmastering, consuming, yearning for their children. It is one of the precious mysteries of life, that anything,—degradation, poverty, crime—may come! but that spark burns clear as the ambient lights of heaven.

Said one of them, coolly, dispassionately, "Hanging, this hour would be welcomed, if, for the dreary years ahead, I am not to see my children."

It struck me that five or six years was one term of punishment, and separation from children for that time was quite another and a greater. The heart of every parent must ache for these desolate women, however just their sentence.

A NEGRO PHILOSOPHER.—A correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette, writing from the Cumberland river, gives the following humorous colloquy with a philosophic darkey:

I noticed upon the hurricane deck an elderly darkey with a very philosophical and retrospective cast of countenance, squatted upon his bundle, toasting his shins against the chimney, and apparently plunged into a state of profound meditation. Finding, upon inquiry, that he belonged to the Ninth Illinois, one of the most gallantly behaved and heavy losing regiments at the Fort Donelson battle, and a part of which was aboard, I began to interrogate him upon the subject. His philosophy was so much in the Falstaffian style that I will give his views in his own words, as near as my memory serves me:

"Were you in the fight?"

"Had a little taste of it, sa."

"Stood your ground did you?"

"No, sa, I runs."

"Run at the first fire, did you?"

"Yes, and would hab run sooner, had I know'd it war coming."

"Why, that wasn't very creditable to your courage."

"Dat isn't in my line, sa—cookin's my perfession."

"Well, but have you no regard for your reputation?"

"Reputation's nuffin to me, by the side of life."

"Do you consider your life worth more than other people?"

"It's worth more to me, sa."

"Then you must value your life very highly?"

"Yes, sa, I does, more than all dis world; more than a million of dollars, sa, for what would dat be worth to a man wid de bref out on him? Self-preserbashun am de fust law wid me."

"But why should you act upon a different rule from other men?"

"Because different men set different value upon their lives; mine is not in de market."

"But if you lost it you would have the satisfaction of knowing that you died for your country."

"What satisfaction would dat be to me when de power of feelin' was gone?"

"Then patriotism and honor are nothing to you?"

"Nuffin' whatever, sa; I regard dem as among de vanities."

"If our soldiers were like you, traitors might have broken up the Government without resistance."

"Yes, sa, dar would have been no help for it; wouldn't put my life in the scale 'ginst any government that ever existed, for no government could replace the loss to me."

"You might not have been missed."

"May be not, sa; a dead white man ain't much to dese sogers, let alone a dead nigger; but I'd missed myself, and dat was de pint wid me."

It is safe to say that the dusty corpse of that African will never darken the field of carnage.

A TERRIBLE FIX.—At a late convention, a fellow, whom we will call A., was very anxious to be nominated for Lieut. Governor. So he went around to his next friend B., when the following conversation took place:

"Now, B., I've got a good show for Lieut. Governor, and I want my old friends to go in for me. I hope you'll do your best."

"I didn't know that you were a candidate," said B., scratching his head and looking amazed.

"Yes, I am," said A., "now go in big."

Here B.'s eyes were fixed on vacancy, and he looked very solemn.

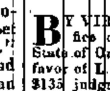

At length A. aroused him from his reverie by inquiring what he was thinking about.

Scratching his head, and speaking very moderately, B. replied:

"I was just thinking that if you are nominated for Lieut. Governor, and our ticket was elected, and the Governor should die, what a confounded fix the State would be in."
